under the absolute control of the probate jurisdictions of this country is sufficient excuse for a far more superior publication on this subject even in this age of publications. But when we are aided in our research by an effort like Mr. Rice's we feel grateful indeed. These reports have condensed work which many precious hours would be consumed in looking up. Even in this 19th Century, remarkable for condensed material, we readily find place for such works.

AMERICAN PRACTICE REPORTS. Vol. I. Edited by CHARLES A. RAY, LL.D. Washington Law Book Co. 1899.

These reports, which are meant to shorten the arduous labor of looking up many cases on small points in procedure, should be almost invaluable to the active practitioner. They are arranged to appear by advanced parts, thus being strictly up to date.

The arrangement by states, so that it is easy to find the law of a given jurisdiction in a short time, is most convenient. In this series Judge Ray and his associates are materially aiding the actual struggles of the practice of the law for the legal fraternity.
